CLOUDS

Gliding, soaring through the skies
It's huge, white, enormous puffs showing
When they absorb liquid, they are fatty
They consume too much and are bloating

After they explode, black roads are soggy
Cars that slip on the rain need towing
Clouds form shapes in the sky that are funny
They are so pretty in the sky, floating

Clouds are so grand, beautiful, and friendly
So huge, nicely sharing its shading
They are so gargantuan and so flabby
“I love clouds so much!” you might start thinking

Like whipped cream up in the air
Blocking us from the sun's glare
Drifting along with the wind's mighty blow
But sometimes they can get so very low

Clouds are so amazing, dropping rain or hail
Sometimes it hurts your head, so you'll need a pail
Either one, rain or ice
I do think clouds are nice.
